FP Twitter

Attending a FPHQ Tournament?

If you are attending a Fastpitch Headquarters event you can use Twitter to communicate your scores or to let everyone know about exciting things that happened during your games. It is easy to become a follower of FPHQ.

Go to www.twitter.com.

If you already have a Twitter username, sign in. Click on Find People, put in "FPHQ", and then follow us.

If you do not have a Twitter account, click on "Get Started - Join!". Set up your account, then click on "Find People", put in "FPHQ", and then follow us.

PLAYERS - after the game, send us a tweet and tell us how your team did. Did you win? Who did you play? What was the score? Tell us how you did. Did you get a big hit, a game winning RBI? Let us know what happened. But remember, good sportsmanship is mandatory. Any negative comments about your opponents or umpires will get you blocked. Let's keep it positive. Remember that college coaches will be following us too so be careful what you say. Don't monopolize Twitter. Keep your tweets short and sweet.

COACHES - submit your team's scores via Twitter. Just tweet us and we will post the score on the board. You can also tell us who was your MVP of the game. Give your girls a little pat on the back.

COLLEGE COACHES - while watching a game, let us know any good plays or tell us about an exciting match-up. Follow us on Twitter to read about some other games.

PARENTS - report on how your daughter's team is performing. Keep everyone back home updated on the score as the game progresses.

Twitter is a fun way to mini-blog. It really is easy...and fun!! The more people who participate the better it will be.
